

Supervisor Training in Return to Work

Supervisors, Managers and Coordinators

PROGRAM: The first 48 hours after an injury are critical. Frontline individuals in organisations have a very important role to play in the return to work process. This full day training package has been developed specifically for supervisors and managers to help them handle injured workers in a positive way whilst having a clear understanding of the legislative requirements and costs associated with poor return to work outcomes and to define their role within the return to work process. The training will focus on early intervention and incorporate best practice strategies.
